Continuation of 3.: The proposed amendments set forth subject matter not previously claimed that would require further consideration and search, if entered. Furthermore, the proposed amendments raise the issue of new matter, because it is unclear that support exists for changing the basis of the claimed weight ratio. The language, "total of all components comprising isocyanate functions", is not equivalent to the language, "total of isocyanate functions".

Continuation of 11.: Firstly, applicants' response is based upon amendments that will not be entered for the reasons set forth above within Item 3. Secondly, the position is taken, in view of the nature of the relied upon evidentiary calculations, that the calculations and results must be set forth in the form of a 37 CFR 1.132 declaration. Thirdly, to the limited extent that the argued calculations are considered to be probative (in the absence of setting them forth within a declaration), it is not seen that the argued results of the calculations correlate to the claimed weight ratio. The claims specify that the weight ratio is based on the total of all components comprising isocyanate functions; however, the argued results of the calculations appear to be based on the mass of the composition. It has not been established that these respective bases are equivalent. Fourthly, it appears that applicants' response may be incomplete in that within the text pertaining to Example 2, the last sentence is incomplete. Therefore, it is unclear how to interpret the supplied results.
